Content Index Level: Beginner Relative pronouns are: Possesive subject object who/who whose that - We use relative pronouns to introduce relative clauses. The relative clauses tell us more about people and things: Lord Thompson, who is 76, has just retired. This is the house Jack built. Marie Curie is the woman who discovered the radio. We use: who and who for people who for things that for people or things. Two types of relative clause There are two types of relative clause: 1. We use relative clauses to make clear which person or thing we are talking about: Marie Curie is the woman who discovered the radio. This is the house Jack built. In this kind of relative clause, we can use that instead of who or which: Marie Curie is the woman who discovered the radio. This is the house Jack built. We can leave out the pronoun if it is the object of the relative clause: This is the house Jack built. (that's the object of built) Relative pronouns 1 GapFillDragAndDrop_MTU4ODQ or Relative Pronouns 2 GapFillTyping_MTU4ODY Be careful! The relative pronoun is the subject/object of the relative clause, so we do not repeat the subject/object: Marie Curie is the woman who discovered the radius. (which is the issue of discovering, so we don't need it) This is the house Jack built it. (that's the built object, so we don't need it) 2. We also use relative clauses to give more information about a person, thing or situation: Lord Thompson, who is 76 years old, has just retired. We had fish and chips, which I always enjoy. I met Rebecca in town yesterday, which was a pleasant surprise. With this type of relative clause, we use commas (,) to separate it from the rest of the sentence. Be careful! In this kind of relative clause, we can't use that: Lord Thompson, who is 76, has just retired. (NO Lord Thompson, who is 76, has just retired.) and we can't stop the pronoun alone: We had fish and chips, which I always enjoy. (We did NOT have fish and chips, I always enjoy.) Relative pronouns 3 GapFillDragAndDrop_MTU4OTE or Relative Pronouns 4 GapFillTyping_MTU4OTI or Level: intermediate whose and to whom we use whose possessive form of whom: This is George, whose brother went to school with me. Sometimes we use whom as the object of a verb or preposition: This is George, whom you met in our house last year. (who is the object of met) This is George's brother, with whom I went to school. (which is the object of) but nowadays we usually use who: This is George, whom you met at our house last year. This is George's brother, with whom I went to school. Relative pronouns 5 MultipleSelection_MTU4OTM relative pronouns with prepositions When who(m) or who have a preposition, the preposition may come to the beginning clause: I had a guy in Germany, from whom I inherited some money. We bought a chainsaw, with which we cut all the wood. or at the end of the clause: I had an uncle in Germany, who (m) inherited a little From. We bought a chainsaw, with which we cut all the wood. But when that has a preposition, the preposition always comes to an end: I didn't know the guy I inherited the money from. We can't find the chainsaw we cut all the wood with. Relative pronouns 6 GapFillTyping_MTU4OTQ when and where we can use when with the times and where with the places to make clear what time or place we are talking about: England won the World Cup in 1966. It was the year we got married. I remember my twentieth birthday. It was the day the tsunami happened. Do you remember where we took the train? Stratford-upon-Avon is the city where Shakespeare was born. We can stop alone when: England won the World Cup in 1966. It was the year we got married. I remember my twentieth birthday. It was the day the tsunami happened. We often use quantifiers and numbers with relative pronouns: all of which / to whom most of whom / to whom many of whom / to whom none of whom / to whom one of whom / to whom two of whom / whom etc. He has three brothers, two of whom are in the army. I read three books last week, one of which I really enjoyed. There were some good shows on the radio, none of which I listened to.
